

Home Care/ Supports for Independence

In-Home Services: for seniors and individuals with disabilities

Provides people of all ages, as well as organizations, with a wide range of in-home services. There are two broad types of services: government supported and private pay.

Government Assisted Services

- Organized according to the need of the individuals
- Individuals with physical disabilities receive support from JEVS Supports for Independence in screening candidates and processing paychecks, and sometimes additional services; the consumer is the employer
- Individuals with intellectual disabilities and their families (or friends they live with) select, hire and direct in-home support staff; JEVS Home Care is employer of record

Private Pay Services (JEVS Home Care)

- In-home care for individuals with short and long-term disabilities includes assistance with personal care, light housekeeping, meal preparation, errands, and other tasks
- Agency model: provides staff to meet the needs of the consumer, who provides supervision
- Registry model: JEVS refers credentialed candidates to the consumer for interviews
- Geriatric Care Managers help the individual navigate the health care system
- Assistance in completing the application for the Veteran's Non-Connected Service Premium Benefit
- Assistance with assessing need for and installation of home modifications

Cost

Services may be free for eligible individuals. For others, a co-pay will be assessed

For private pay individuals, we accept long-term care insurance. When insurance is not available, competitive rates are offered.
